

EVOLVE OR DIE: ENVIRONMENTALISM IN THE 21ST CENTURY.

Introduction

Modern Environmentalism presents a comprehensive introduction to environmentalism and the history of attitudes to nature and environment. It also offers a greater understanding of environmentalism and the environmental debate, and the different approaches to establishing the desired ecological society. environmental ideologies.

Methodological basis

The methodological basis of the study is the methods of analytical information processing, methods of historical and logical analysis, a systematic approach, phenomenological, hermeneutic methods and others.

Goal

Reflect the characteristic features of the formation of environmentalism and its basic concepts and directions, identify the value orientations of environmentalism and substantiate its theoretical and practical significance in the formation of environmental consciousness.

Conclusions

1. Environmentalism today can claim the role of a global ideology that can unite all of humanity to solve not only environmental, but also other problems;
2. The main levers of influence on the formation of a truly ecological consciousness and rational attitude to the environment are the promotion of an environmentally active lifestyle, the call for the use of environmentally friendly energy sources and technical means.